+ Research + Education + Partnerships

In pursuit of the common good, through excellence in new economic knowledge

Research: TSE is one of the world's top 10 economics departments, gathering more than 150 international faculty among whom Jean Tirole, 2014 Nobel laureate.

Education: TSE has been training tomorrow's top economists since 2011. Its 2500 students benefit from the academic excellence of TSE faculty but also from the inputs and advice of international experts. The growing alumni network is another key advantage for their careers.

Interdisciplinarity: The Institute for Advanced Study in Toulouse (IAST) is TSE's sister institution, a cutting-edge research center aiming at unlocking solutions to today's major issues through analytical and quantitative methods across the social sciences.

Partnerships: Jean-Jacques Laffont, TSE's founding father, always envisioned a strong link between academic research, institutions, companies and the real-world issues they face. Toulouse economists have hence been very active exchanging and debating with practitioners and institutional leaders, allowing our faculty to test their models and results on empirical situations.

“ TSE’s mission is to develop economic knowledge for the common good ”

Christian Gollier
TSE Director

TSE is an international research center among the very best in the world. TSE is for example the 3rd beneficiary of European Research Council grants. This support, awarded via calls for projects, illustrates the talent and academic excellence of TSE faculty.

Imagined by Jean Jacques Laffont in the 80s, TSE has always been inspired by the very best universities in the world and implemented from the outset a strong independent governance system, ensuring the long-term vision of the center and its ambition to figure among the very best research institutions in the world.

TSE’s Scientific Council gathers 16 world-class academic members among whom 4 are Nobel laureates. TSE faculty are always in relation with economic leaders from companies or institutions and are regularly asked to deliver reports or analysis. This mission of contributing to public debate is at the heart of the institute.

Delivering world-class degrees in economics

“ TSE implements innovative teaching techniques, in line with the very best international standards ”

Stéphane Gregoir
TSE Dean

TSE trains tomorrow's leading economists and offers both theoretical and empirical courses, directly in link with the latest research results from its faculty.

The future of research

“ The study of human behavior is the common goal of the different social sciences, it’s high time to remove their artificial boundaries ”

Paul Seabright
IAST Dean

The Institute of Advanced Research in Toulouse (IAST) gathers more than thirty international researchers from across the social sciences (anthropology, biology, law, economics, history, philosophy, political science, psychology, sociology) within a cutting-edge interdisciplinary research center that aims to answer the biggest societal questions.

Partnership research

“ An incredible opportunity to directly confront our work with the real-world issues of companies and institutions ”

Sébastien Pouget
Director,
TSE Partnership

TSE has always been a partnership-oriented research center. Over the years, its numerous partners have benefited from the economic expertise of TSE faculty in a wide range of fields, including energy & climate, digital economics, sustainable finance, health and much more.

These exchanges have also been of great help to TSE faculty who have been able to test their theories, models, and predictions. The work that the Nobel Committee rewarded Jean Tirole for in 2014 stems from this tradition of partnership research.
